Departure for San Javier situated at 36 km (20 miles) of dirt road from Loreto. The trail rises through the Sierra de la Giganta and overhangs green canyons. At the end of some hours, you reach the mission, in the hollow of mountains in the middle of an oasis.

Do not miss to go to see the hundred-years-old olive trees situated behind and which were planted by Jesuit missionaries in the 18th century.

You can have a lunch in a local restaurant, after you take back the trail in the other direction. The descent is also spectacular with, in the background, the intense blue of the Sea of Cortez... Return to Loreto.

Overnight at a hotel in standard room without breakfast.

Day 5 / Loreto / Bahia Concepcion / Mulegé

Today direction Mulegé. The road is lined with immense Cardon cactus which exceed 15

Day 6 / Mulegé

Small village rocked by the rhythm of the stream which crosses it, we invite you to walk at the heart of the oasis, to visit the Mission and the former prison that has now become a museum, and admire the very present and cheap crafts.

You will have all the time to return to Bahia Concepcion to take completely the most of this sublime place.

Night at hotel in standard room with breakfast.

Day 7/ Mulegé / Santa Rosalia / San Ignacio

Departure for San Ignacio. On the way you stop at Santa Rosalia, former mining city today converted into the fishing of the Squid of Humboldt.

The singular colonial French architecture gives this place a resemblance of a city of the Wild West.

The church conceived by Gustave Eiffel and the bakery are two curiosities which are worth being seen. The state and the municipality launched in 2006 a project of restoration of the ancient buildings to return to the city its atypical historic heritage.

You continue then towards San Ignacio. On the road you can admire the majesty of Tres Virgenes and Azufre volcanoes, what allow you to observe very close the solidified lava flows.

The last eruption dates from the 18th century.

Arrival at San Ignacio. Night in a standard and fully equipped yurt!

This B&B is run by adorable Canadians (English speaking), she prepares excellent breakfasts

Day 8 / San Ignacio / Laguna San Ignacio / San Ignacio

Mid-January to Mid-April)

During this day, direction Laguna San Ignacio for an encounter with the grey whales... approximately two hours of road until you reach the Lagoon and then 1:30 hours or two by boat in the lagoon. In this period of the year, it is possible to see tens of whales and even pet them for the luckier!

Have lunch in an ecological camp and then return to San Ignacio.

The trail between San Ignacio and the lagoon is very beautiful and offers changeable and contrasted landscapes). Night in standard yurt with breakfast.

Day 9 / San Ignacio / San Francisco de la Sierra / San Ignacio.

Departure to the sierra of San Francisco. You take the road northward and after some kilometers, you fork on the right. From there, the trail rises on the crest of the mountain between two canyons. It is during this day that you will have the opportunity to see the biggest variety of plants of your entire journey, notably the “cirio”, endemic plant with strange forms.

Points of view are spectacular on the plain, the canyons and the surrounding mountains.

After approximately two hours, you reach San Francisco de la Sierra. Small village lost in the middle of the mountains, living essentially on the breeding and on the tourism.

If you wish it, you can visit the Cueva Del Raton (if you have before bought your ticket at THE INAH offices which are situated under the courtyard of the mission (Open at 8 am), and have retrieved your guide in San Francisco de la Sierra). The cave contains rock paintings dating from more than 4000 years testifying of the ethnological past of the peninsula.

Day 11 / Guerrero Negro / Mission San Borja / Bahia of Los Angeles

Here you have reached Baja California norte, you cross the border between both states and continue northward. To come up to Rosarito, you take the dirt road which leads to the mission San Borja, one of the most isolated of the peninsula. You cross wonderful landscapes strewn with plants all as strange as the others. It is here that cacti can reach 20 meters high.

You visit the mission with the local guardian then you continue your road.

Finally, you arrive at Bahia of Los Angeles, kind of mirage which appears from the desert...

At sunset, mountains wear ochre and red colors, the whole being reflected on a glassy sea...

In what season to travel?

We consider that this tour can be made all year long, but it is necessary to consider that in the South (from San Ignacio) the August and September is/are particularly warm (+/-40°C, 105°F) and very wet.

Furthermore, in September the risk of having hurricanes or big rains do not have to be underestimated.

All year long, Baja California enjoys a rather pleasant and warm climate generally speaking, with a little "cool" wind in winter, and sometimes cold nights (in the desert), and little rain. In a general way, the North is cooler, with more rain in winter, and the South is warmer with more rain in summer.

Here are the average temperatures:
